GRENADA

Grenada is located in the West Indies in the Caribbean Sea. It consists of the island of Grenada itself with two smaller islands named Carriacouan and Petite Martinique, and also a number of smaller islands lying to the north of Grenada island. Beyond the advantages of economic and international freedom, Grenada also offers variety of lifestyle perks to people who plan to call it home. It is known as the “Spice Island” due to its rich heritage of growing and trading spices. It also boasts excellent healthcare and education systems and is among the safest nations within the Caribbean. Incredible scenery, rich biodiversity, exquisite cuisine, and a welcoming community only increase the island’s lure.
